A BLACKNESS ABSOLUTE

BY CAITLIN MARCEAU

Creepy as hell. Utterly addictive and compellingly frightening.

A remarkable ride I cannot recommend enough.
-- Sofia Ajram, author of The Arborglyph

BOOK DETAILS:

A Blackness Absolute is a collection of previously unpublished short horror stories by up-and-coming Canadian author Caitlin Marceau. The collection takes in uncertainties of perception, feelings of vulnerability—to the weather, the natural world, the tenuousness of sanity—and mixes these elements with a strong sense of history and folklore. From the title piece to the final tale, each story layers ambiguities to create an unnerving effect that will get under your skin.

AUTHOR BIO:

CAITLIN MARCEAU is a queer author and lecturer based in Montreal. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in Creative Writing, is an Active Member of the Horror Writers Association. Her other work includes Palimpsest, Magnum Opus, This Is Where We Talk Things Out, and Femina.

PRAISE FOR A BLACKNESS ABSOLUTE:

"Marceau understands the terror that waits in the dark places beyond the seemingly Everyday. Fans will not be disappointed, and new readers will find themselves falling deep into A Blackness Absolute."

-- Laura Keating, author of Agony's Lodestone

"Another dark and desolate collection from a fantastic new talent; Marceau understands how to tap into the root of deep, inescapable fear, and applies it with calculated precision."

-- Lindz McLeod, author of Turducken

ASHTHORNE

BY APRIL YATES

BOOK DETAILS:

In the aftermath of World War One, Adelaide Frost is on the run from a family who do not understand her. Hoping to do some good, she signs up to become a nurse at Ashthorne, a manor house newly designated as a convalescence home for injured soldiers. She quickly falls in love with the owner's daughter, Evelyn, who hides a warm heart beneath a chilly exterior. But Evelyn has her suspicions about what's really happening at the hospital, and as Adelaide helps her investigate, it soon becomes apparent that there are more inhabitants residing at Ashthorne than first thought.

A romantic Gothic treat perfect for fans of Sarah Waters and The Haunting of Bly Manor, ASHTHORNE is the debut novella by Derbyshire author April Yates, who was inspired to tell this story by the Ice Age art carved into the walls of local caves.

PRAISE FOR ASHTHORNE:

"Lush, powerfully written, elegiac and disquieting, ASHTHORNE confirms April Yates as one of the brightest and most talented new stars in the queer horror firmament. It's grisly, it's gothic and it's gay as hell: you're going to love it."

— T.C. Parker, author of Hummingbird

AUTHOR BIO:

APRIL YATES is an author of sapphic horror and Gothic fiction, based in Derbyshire, UK. Her short stories have appeared in A Quaint and Curious Volume of Gothic Tales by Brigid's Gate Press, and Blood & Bone: An Anthology of Body Horror by Women by Ghost Orchid Press, amongst others.

THE BELLADONNA INVITATION

BY ROSE BIGGIN

BOOK DETAILS:

Soprano, socialite, queen of the demimonde—the enigmatic Belladonna is the undisputed ruler of 1890s Parisian society. At her highly exclusive salons it's an open secret that she plays poisonous games with select clientele. A printer's apprentice, longing to enter this glamorous world, works her way through the Opera House ranks to become Belladonna's indispensable assistant. But when a love affair with the wrong man goes too far, the consequences turn deadly.

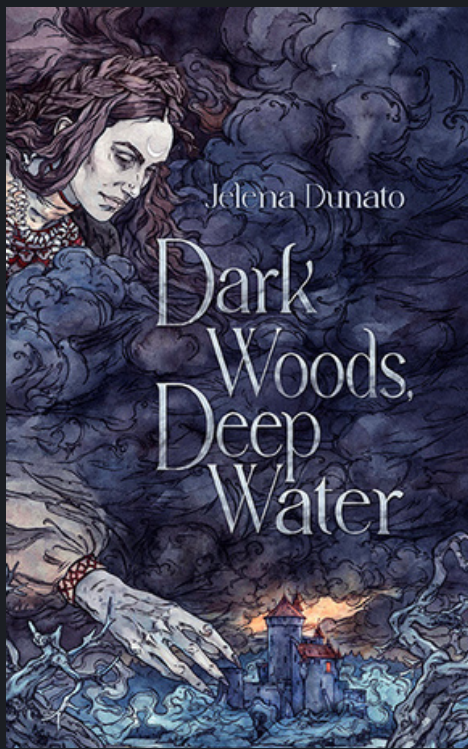

A luxurious gothic drama where everything is performance and illusion, The Belladonna Invitation asks: how far will we go to get what we want, and how much are we willing to let it change us?

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

Rose Biggin is a writer and theatre artist living in London. Her short fiction has been published in anthologies by Abaddon Books, Mango, Jurassic London, Betwixt Magazine, Brigids Gate Press and Egeus Press, made the recommended reading list for Best of British Fantasy (NewCon Press), and won the Dark Sire's Gothic Fiction Prize. Her first novel Wild Time (Surface Press) is a punk revision of pleasure and power in A Midsummer Night's Dream.

She is author of Immersive Theatre and Audience Experience (Palgrave Macmillan), she works as a performer across theatre and live art, and has recently joined the Creative Writing faculties at CityLit and Birkbeck.

DARK WOODS, DEEP WATER

BY JELENA DUNATO

BOOK DETAILS:

In the depths of a remote forest, an enchanted castle preys on unwary travellers. The servants of the Goddess Morana sacrifice to their dark mistress every soul who crosses its threshold. One terrible night, three people who should never have met find themselves trapped there: a spoiled lady escaping an unwanted marriage, an aging warrior-prince on a deadly mission, and a resourceful rogue caught up in a botched heist. As their destinies entwine and the dawn approaches, the solution to the castle's riddle becomes clear: if they want to escape, one of them must die.

A dark fantasy tale inspired by Slavic folklore, Dark Woods, Deep Water is the debut novel by Croatian author Jelena Dunato. Set in an intricately imagined world that staggers the line between fairytale and brutality, this novel will appeal to fans of Katherine Arden and Naomi Novik, as well as lovers of classic Gothic fiction.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

Jelena Dunato is an art historian, curator, speculative fiction writer and lover of all things ancient. She grew up in Croatia on a steady diet of adventure novels and then wandered the world for a decade, building a career in the arts.

Jelena's stories have been published in Beneath Ceaseless Skies, The Dark, Future SF and Mermaids Monthly, among others. She is a member of SFWA and Codex.

Jelena lives on an island in the Adriatic with her husband, daughter and cat.

THE DEVIL'S GIFT

BY JOSHUA ROBINSON

On her knees, the girl gorged on the thigh resting on the toilet bowl: an oversized drumstick that still had a trainer on.

She snapped her head around, fixing him with a dazzling blue stare that rooted him to the spot. Rising, she strode forward, blood dribbling down her chin, bits of meat caught between pink, sharkish teeth.

Daniel gripped the dry ceramic behind him, gripping until his fingers stung with pain. "V-Vampire," he blurted.

Inches away, she smirked. "No. I'm Gabriella."

BOOK DETAILS:

Lonely and bullied at school, all twelve-year-old Daniel wants is a girlfriend. The mysterious girl at his local park seems like the perfect candidate. But when a jogger goes missing, Daniel discovers Gabriella's secret: she's a killer. One with a very unusual diet.

Lovestruck with a girl who can help him finally stand up to his bullies, Daniel has everything he's always wanted. Can he really give it all up and turn Gabriella in? And does she love him enough to let him?

Ideal for fans of Grady Hendrix and Tim Meyer, THE DEVIL'S GIFT is the thrilling debut novella by London-based horror writer Joshua Robinson.

AUTHOR BIO:

JOSHUA ROBINSON is a British author of horror fiction. His work has appeared in Coffin Bell Journal, Night Picnic Journal, and Tales to Terrify Podcast, among others.

THE EXTRAVAGANZA ETERNIA

BY KRISTIN OSANI

The Extravaganza Eternia is a mesmerising journey through a magical circus full of wondrous creatures with friendship and love as our final destination.

— Eugenia Triantafyllou,
author of The Giants of the Violet Sea

BOOK DETAILS:

Supernatural circus performer Leathan doesn't let herself get close to anyone. It's too painful when her curse literally rips those connections out of her heart. That's why she does her best to weed out the friendship sprouting between her and Renni, the gregarious star of the show.

When Renni is murdered, the ringmaster tasks Leathan with catching his killer. But all signs indicate the culprit is one of the Extravaganza's own, and the more she learns about her fellow troupers, the farther she feels from the truth—and the closer she is to forming fatal new attachments.

A darkly fantastical mystery reminiscent of The Night Circus and Even Though I Knew the End, THE EXTRAVAGANZA ETERNIA will enchant and delight.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

KRISTIN OSANI (she/her) is a queer fantasy writer who lives with her husband in northeastern Japan, where she works as a Japanese-to-English video game translator and manga editor when she's not writing, working on nerdy cross-stitching, or cuddling her two cats.

MAZI

BY KOJI A. DAE

BOOK DETAILS:

When Silvena and her boyfriend take a vacation at an isolated mountain villa in Bulgaria, she gets the unsettling sense she is being watched by the knots in the house's wooden walls. Her boyfriend tries to distract her with their usual BDSM games, but Silvena's hallucinations only worsen when she encounters a local woodcutter who takes an unusual interest in her. Could his presence be somehow linked to her delusions?

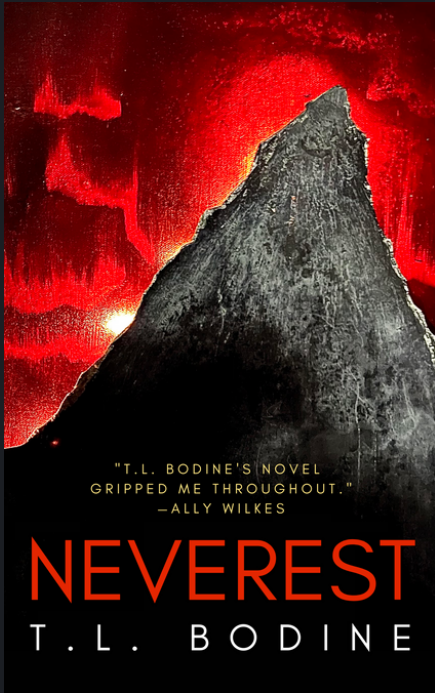

The debut novella from Koji A. Dae, author of Scars that Never Bled, Mazi is a seductive erotic horror tale inspired by the author's experiences using kink to deal with mental health issues and the bitter, sometimes isolating winter of the Balkan Mountains.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

KOJI A. DAE is a queer, synesthetic American living long-term in Bulgaria with her husband, two kids, and a cat. She is enthralled by Eastern European mythology and, after ten years of soaking up the magic of the Balkan Mountains, she feels prepared to write about it. By day she works with a non-profit furthering Bulgarian education, and by night she reads, writes, and crochets. Her short fiction can be found in Clarkesworld Magazine, Apex Magazine and others, and she has a poetry collection called Scars that Never Bled: An Exploration of Frankenstein Through Poetry.

Koji is available for interviews, events and podcasts upon request. Suggested topics for discussion include: consent in erotic horror, BDSM and sex positivity in erotic horror, horror and fetish, and content warnings in erotic horror.

NEVEREST

BY T.L. BODINE

"T.L. Bodine's novel gripped me throughout."
-- ALLY WILKES, author of *All the White Spaces

BOOK DETAILS:

One year ago, Sean Miller—journalist and mountain climbing enthusiast—reached the summit of Mount Everest and was never seen again. Unable to move on without knowing the truth of what happened, his widow Carrie insists on an expedition to search for Sean's body so it can be properly laid to rest.

But as Sean's diary and Carrie's experiences reveal, climbing the mountain is more than a test of endurance; it's a battle of wills with an ancient and hostile force protecting the mountain—and the dead do not rest easy at the summit.

NEVEREST is a survival thriller with a hint of the supernatural that will appeal to fans of Ally Wilkes' All the White Spaces and Amy McCulloch's Breathless.

PRAISE FOR NEVEREST:

"An intense psychological study of obsession, jealousy, and hubris, set on the body-strewn slopes of Everest - with a deft hand on the mountain's unearthly and supernatural elements - T.L. Bodine's novel gripped me throughout. Perfect for fans of Amy McCulloch's Breathless, or Sarah Lotz's The White Road."

-- Ally Wilkes, author of All the White Spaces

"NEVEREST weaves a deft, intoxicating spell of grief, intrigue, adventure, and the ghosts of our pasts. Beautifully paced and haunting in all the best ways, by the end of the journey I felt almost as breathless as a doomed climber. Bodine spins a talented and imminently enjoyable tale—settle in for winter horror at its best."

-- Laurel Hightower, author of Crossroads and Below

SAIR BACK, SAIR BANES

BY ANTHONY ENGBRETSON

A dark shape now stood in those choppy dark waters. A horse. A black one, large as she'd ever seen, with a mane that poured down its neck.

BOOK DETAILS:

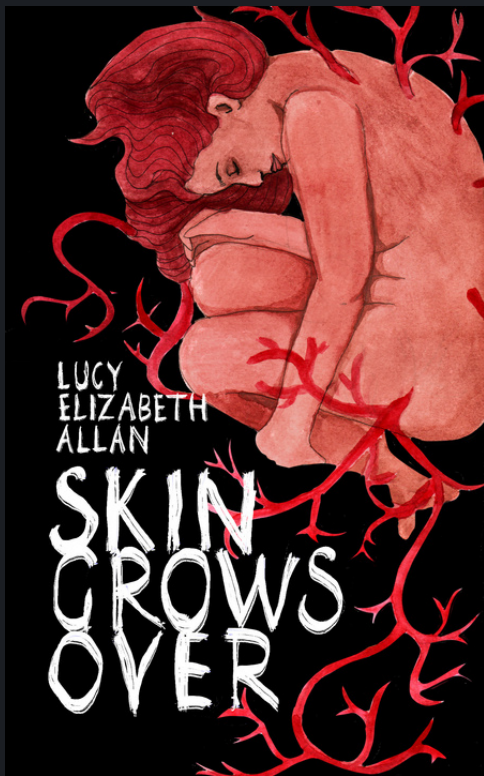

Genevieve hoped a trip to the Scottish village of Fonniskie would help her reconnect. But her vacation turns out to be less than relaxing: the nearby loch holds a dark secret, and Genevieve finds herself haunted by a relentless pursuer whose obsession means he will do anything to possess her—even kill.

Blending ancient folklore with modern alienation, Anthony Engebretson's eerie debut novella will make you question what it really means to be human.

AUTHOR BIO:

Anthony Engebretson lives in Lincoln, Nebraska with his cat, Cicero. He has been published in several anthologies including Cloaked Press's Spring Into SciFi2018 and Spring Into SciFi 2019, the Writer's Coop's The Rabbit Hole Volume 1, and Martinus Publishing's Forbidden: Tales of Repression, Restriction, & Rebellion. SKIN GROWS OVER

BY LUCY ELIZABETH ALLAN

BOOK DETAILS:

A young woman who has never learned how to grieve begins to come apart following the loss of the one friend who truly understood her. A mysterious and obsessive Humanist celebrant prepares to perform the most important funeral of her life. A world-weary and weather-beaten museum custodian resigns herself to hosting a mysterious ceremony that goes against everything she believes in. Connecting the three of them, a centuries-old bog mummy, hovering around it all, watching, waiting to be put to rest.

SKIN GROWS OVER weaves realism with uncanny horror, using images of deep history and the otherworldly Scottish wilderness to tell a very modern tale about grief, queerness, and female embodiment. In a culture where dead women are objects of immaculate peaceful beauty existing only to be mourned by others, this grotesque and earthy dead woman who refuses to stay dead comes to represent the uncanny overlap of grief and female embodiment, in all its ugly humanity.

EARLY PRAISE FOR SKIN GROWS OVER:

"This is, quite simply, an extraordinary book, and Allan an astonishing new talent."

-- Ally Wilkes, author of All the White Spaces

AUTHOR BIO:

LUCY ELIZABETH ALLAN was born in Glasgow. She has a Master's in creative writing from Trinity College Dublin, and is studying towards a PhD at the University of Glasgow. SKIN GROWS OVER is her first novella.

WINTER HARVEST

BY IOANNA PAPADOPOULOU

BOOK DETAILS:

When her beloved daughter Kore vanishes, Demeter is distraught. Suspecting betrayal and mistrusting of her family, she searches across the world, unable to come to terms with such a loss. But Demeter is one of the original goddesses of Mount Olympus, and a force not to be underestimated. She is determined that she will find her daughter, even if it means destroying humanity in the process.

Winter Harvest is a brand-new, dark reimagining of the tale of Demeter and Persephone by Greek author Ioanna Papadopoulou. Steeped in lore and with a deep understanding of the many different facets of Demeter's personality, this retelling will change your perspective on one of the most well-known stories of Greek mythology.

PRAISE FOR WINTER HARVEST:

"WINTER HARVEST is a retelling that feels as primal as the myth itself."

— Jelena Dunato, author of *Dark Woods, Deep Water

"There is a dark, merciless, and terrifying side to motherhood not every mother is forced to face, but every mother is aware that it lurks behind her ribs ...This is Demeter like you have never seen her before."

— Heather Ventura Vassallo, co-editor of *Musings of the Muses and Daughter of Sarpedon

AUTHOR BIO:

IOANNA PAPADOPOULOU is a Greek by descent and Scottish by residence author. Other than writing, she is passionate about art history and museology. She has been published at Hexagon Magazine, Idle Ink, Piker Press and The Future Fire.
